Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 1.-One copy of Governor Wilson's speech of acceptance went to the printer this morning and the other copy was remined for the perusal of Ollie James, who dropped in for luncheon with the Democratic nominee.

Without saying it in so many words, Governor Wilson made a chance remark which tends to confirm the belief of his friends that there will be nothing revolutionary in the tariff section of his speech of acceptance and that business need not go into a panic at present. Instead, it may be taken to mean that he will advocate a gradual revision downward until the proper basis is reached. Sufficient time will be allowed for general business to adjust itself to the changing conditions.

VICTIM WIFE OF INSURANCE MAN

French Authoress and Dramatlet, Mme. Bloch, Calls Upon Mrs. James E. Bridgeman, Whose Husband Had Recently Sued For Divorce, and When Appeal is Met With Blank Refusal, Shoots Husband's Mistress Through Head.

Paris, Aug. 1.- Mme. Bloch, who is well known as a novelist under the pen name of "Frederic Boileau," and the author of numerous plays, shot and instantly killed Mrs. James E. Bridgeman, wife of the cashier of the Paris branch of the New York Life Insurance company, who was Miss Minnie Barnhart of Milwaukee. Jealousy was the cause.

The murder occurred in a small apartment which had been occupied by Mrs. Bridgeman, near the Madeleine. She went there to live shortly after she had been separated from her husband, who a few months ago began a sait to divorce her, and in which he stated that M. Bloch had been meeting his wife for years. Mme. Bloch, who, it is stated, knew of the alleged relations between her husband and Mrs. Bridgeman, determined to make a last appeal to the latter, and called at Mrs. Bridgeman's apartment. She was admitted

Mme. Bloch introduced herself to Mrs. Bridgeman and read some letters from her husband, who is now traveling in Germany on business. These indicated that Mme. Bloch might re gain her husband's affections.

"Will you give him up?" asked Mme. Bloch of Mrs. Bridgeman. "All this makes no difference to me. I have him and I will keep him."

Draws Revolver From Handbag Mme. Bloch immediately drew a small revolver from the handbag which she carried and fired two shots out the other struck Mrs. Bridgeman

Mme. Bloch calmly replaced the pistol in her bag and walked away, saying to the concierge of the pension as she went out, "I have just killed my rival."

Then Mme. Bloch went to the flow er market near by, accosted the first policeman she met, told him what she had done, handed over her revolver and was taken to the police station. where she said: "I will explain everything in court.
